What does it mean when a guy says all women are crazy? I said to him "I know you probably think I'm crazy, and I feel stupid." And he said "all women are crazy" was that him forgiving me? Or should I just move on?

The first thing you need to know/understand is he was right when he said all women are crazy. Ounce you get that the rest should be self explanatory. Really.

How can I have more energy in the mornings?

Just look at the legendary Chuck Norris's advice since he is now a whopping 81 years old and yet has MORE energy than me. He found a key to healthy aging... and it was by doing the opposite of what most of people are told. Norris says he started learning about this revolutionary new method when he

Because a large portion of them are and I've never even had an intimate relationship with one. I've grown up observing horrible relationships that have pretty much turned me asexual. Something won't be done how they wanted it exactly and they flip their lid. Making a mountain out of a mole hill so to speak. Screaming, yelling, threatening all the time over trivial things. I would love to actually have a relationship but I cannot deal with what I've seen other people try to deal with for the sake of "love". I wouldn't be happy they would probably not be happy either. I don't know if it's just the way they've evolved over time, been raised, or what but the majority or the women I have met and even grown up around have too short of fuses to even seem remotely attractive to me. And I'm not gay so that pretty much just narrows it done to lonely. But at least I'm not being told what a worthless piece of crap I am because I forgot to take out the trash because I was exhausted from work and she just sits on her butt and complains all day. Seen that happen in way more than one relationship. If I did get hooked on someone and they turned as soon as the puppy love wore off, I'd probably be even more suicidal than I already am. So yeah. You're lucky if you find a sane one. They are a rare breed.

I don't think anyone likes telling other people they're crazy, and you'll probably find that most men, like most women, have only said this to a minority of the people they've met. In my experience though among men crazy is usually equated with abusive and or controlling. A man accusing his ex of being

If a man says all women/ girls are crazy, just RUN.

If a man says you are crazy RUN.

Is it acceptable to be offended? I think, if you feel that way, it is healthy and also a warning sign.

In my experience..., when a man says all girls/women are crazy i know, i have to run. This relationship will be a nightmare. And toxic.

See youtube videos what kind of man this could be.

What is your highest-paying side hustle (and how do you do it)?

I've probably tried maybe 30+ side hustles over the past year. Here are the 4 that have paid me the most.

They're all (relatively) easy to pull off:

1.Playing solitaire on my phone - (Earning potential: up to $4,000/week)

NOTE: This is only available on Samsung phones.

Sounds nuts, obviously, but the idea of playing cash solitaire as a side gig has been around for years.

Is he teasing or is he at least semi-serious?

If he is serious, I would be concerned that he might not like women all that much. There are plenty of men who are attracted to women sexually, but don't actually appreciate and like women in general. I would think long and hard about getting involved with such a man, particularly since he doesn't consider you an exception to the rule. You deserve to be with someone who will not only desire you, but cherish you.

be offended by this?

The fact that you felt the need to ask this question is worrisome.

It is normal to feel upset when someone insults you, and it sounds like this is an insulting "crazy" rather than an affectionate "You so crazy, girl!" It's also normal to feel upset when confronted with misogyny, and asserting that woman are crazy is misogynist.

What is your highest-paying side hustle (and how do you do it)?

I confess to spending an embarrassing amount of time exploring various side gigs. While many conventional "side hustle" concepts are fraudulent or ineffective, a few genuinely offer high earning potential. Here are my top picks.

1. Enjoying Solitaire on your phone (Earnings: up to $875/week) – For Samsung Phones only.

100% true, the moment you give them attention, they will think you are clingy or you are desperate and that is an instant turn off for them. Girls/Women want someone that is as asshole but at the same time good to them. It makes no sense, but that is the reality of it. Not all girls/women are like that but most

It is VERY typical for a nasty manipulator to blame their exes for the failure of the relationship, and they call them crazy. In their sick minds they believe they are wonderful and anyone would be crazy to not do everything possible to stay with them.

You have been warned. End this relationship now before you get in any deeper

He left you because of your past history. In essence, he left you because you are the problem. Your exes had gone crazy because you drove them personally to their destination. I like your ex. He saw a red flag and walked. Good for him.

Related Why would a guy leave a woman for being "crazy"?

I think I would have a hard time being around anyone who "starts arguments for NO reason and tends to go off and overreact to certain situations".

In fact you answered your own question: a guy would leave a woman if she starts arguments for no reason and tends to overreact to certain situations. He just uses the term "crazy" to summarize those two issues.

I'm assuming he doesn't want to deal with it anymore.

Thanks for the A2A

What are financial mistakes Americans make?

Where do I start?

I spend a LOT of time talking to people about their spending habits. Here are the biggest mistakes people are making, in my eyes:

1. Not getting a financial advisor.

99% of people don't have one, and it's typically a huge mistake.

Sure, you can manage things on your own if you want to, but most people don't have the time to actually do things right. There are huge benefits to having somebody pay attention to your money all the time.

A narcissist playing games. All fun and games to him. You'RE a chess piece. Classic when they do something strange and then they act like there's nothing wrong, like nothing ever happened. There's only one thing you can do. Block in every way possible, completely ignore their existence. This is manipulation and gaslighting.
